The Henry Art Gallery is the University of Washington's Art Museum. Founded in 1927, it is the only museum dedicated to contemporary art in the region. Located on the west edge of the university's campus along 15th Avenue N.E. in the University District, it was founded in 1927 and was the first public art museum in Washington.